Access to Work and Training Course at TAFE Illawarra’s Goulburn Campus provides a pathway to success for students

The Access to Work and Training course will be offered in Semester 1, 2012 at Goulburn Campus for women wanting to return to work or study, or looking to change their career.

According to Outreach Coordinator, Fran Beck the course will be offered on Tuesdays between 9.00am and 3.00pm and has a variety of units that students can study.

“Personal presentation skills is one popular unit within the Certificate I in Access to Work and Training where students are able to visit the Hair and Beauty section to hear tips on grooming including caring for hair, nails and skin in preparation for entering the workforce,” she said.

“Students will also learn basic computing skills as well as job readiness and study skills during the course,” she added.

Sharon a former student said she found the course extremely useful in helping her re-enter the workforce.

“This course was the bridge that I needed to build my confidence to get back into the workforce. I thank the teachers for all their support and guidance in helping me complete all the required units,” she said.

Another student, Sue also commented on the great encouragement offered by staff during the course.

“The teachers have been very attentive to each individual’s needs and their support and encouragement has been excellent,” she said.
